Description

Food is a fantastic vehicle to provide an exciting learning adventure that will captivate students as they are the “STARS” in this workshop. Students expand their discovery of the incredible world of cooking, health and nutrition through this workshop while they practically apply social studies into their daily lives. The Pilgrims will allow students to discover the purposes and adventures of this European settler group and its impact on the USA. Students will gain perspective from the different people involved such as John Smith, William Bradford and others. Students will enjoy learning about the Thanksgiving feast as a national holiday and taste a special dish made during that time. A lively presentation about the Pilgrims will show determination for adapting in strange environments and the need for developing relationships. Prior to any session or group of sessions, chef educators and classroom teachers may collaborate to insure that program meets classroom TEKS. Discussions, worksheets and activities that use social studies will allow students to make sense of their world while developing life-skills to make healthier choices for their success. Kids will shine as they focus on history, geography, economics, governmental, cultural, citizenship objectives using critical thinking, problem solving, relationship building and technology to develop conclusions through the world of culinary arts..
